ON THE COS OCTOBER.

BY THE LATE WILLIS GAYLORD GLARK Solemn, yet beautiful to view. Month of my heart ! Thou dawnest here. With sad and faded leaves to strew The summer's melancholy bier. The mouning of thy winds I hear, As the red sunset dies afar, nd bars of purple clouds appear, Obscuring every western star.

Thou solemn month! I hear thy voice-It tells my soul of other days, When but to live was to remice -When earth was lovely to my gaze; Oh, visions bright on, blessed hours, Where are their living raptures now?-I ask my spirit's wearied powers l ask my pale and levered brow!

I look to nature, and behold-My life's dim emblems rustling round, In hues of crimson and of gold-The year's dead honors on the ground: And sighing with the winds, I feel, While their low pinions murmur by. low much their sweeping tones reveal-Of life and human destiny.

When spring's delightsome moments shone They came in zephyrs from the west, They have the woodlark's melting tone, Through summer, fainting in the heat They lingered in the forest shade; But changed and strengthened now; they In storm, o'er mountain, glen-and glade.

ow like these transports of the breast, When life is fresh and joy is new-Soft as the halcyon's downy nest. And transient still as they are true! They stir the leaves in that bright month, Which Hope about her forehead twines Till grief's not sighs around it breathe-

Then Pleasure's lip its smiles resigns. las for Time, and Death, and Care-What gloom about our way they fling!

Like clouds in Autumn's gusty air, The burial pageant of the Spring. The dreams that each successive year. Seemed bathed in hues of brighter pride, Ar last like withered leaves appear. And sleep in darkness, side by side.
